GENERAL TRADE.

The long, dry interval was broken up yes

No boat was in from above, and the market was quiet. There was a firm feeling in corn; oats were inquired about, and some offered, but not at prices that would secure buyers; cornmeal was back to the previous figure;

eggs were better; provisions were steady and inking funds, 95%.

The cotton market was again, yesterday, influence of depressing news, "weak" were the most frequentoccurring words marked upon the blackboard of the cotton exchange. New Orleans closed easy at the reduction of the day before; New York was weak from the opening to the close for spots, but futures at about previous figures, were firm and stoady; Liverpoel was dull and easier, the quotations for middling uplands was reduced below six-pence, and arrivals opened lower and closed dull. Of course, all this avalanche of evil could not fail to affect our market unfavor-The demand was fair and ran mostly on the lower grades, and quotations on all grades below middling suffered a reduction of Mc as the table below shows. With this reduction buying became pretty active from both exporters and spinners. At the close there was some irregularity of prices all along the list.
